RISK-TAKERS LIKE REAGAN

This half-term we are being risk-takers like Reagan. Being a risk-taker means that you are brave enough to try new things to learn and grow, even if they are a little scary at first. For example, being brave enough to put your hand up in class to answer a question or being willing to step up to new challenges. Being a risk-taker helps you to build confidence and learn new skills, such as resilience.
